PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Welcome to NYWBA's 75th Anniversary Dinner, where we will honor New York Supreme Court Justice Sherry Klein Heitler with The President's Special Award. NYWBA has had the privilege of Justice Heitler's active and productive participation on its Board for many years, and we commend Justice Heitler on her appointment this year as Administrative Judge, Civil Matters, New York County.

And what a year it has been for the advancement of women at the U.S. Supreme Court! We were thrilled with the addition last fall of our member Justice Sonia Sotomayor and are ecstatic to see our highest court possibly reach 30% women months soon. This evening we reflect on the remarkable women who dared to forge ahead in this profession as we redouble our commitment and efforts to continue the mission of NYWBA. It is with sadness that a dynamic woman who started it all for NYWBA and countless others, Hon. Florence Perlow Shientag, NYWBA Founder, Past President and Benefactor, cannot be with us this evening leading the charge into the next 75 years. Judge Sheintag was long admired for her strength, intellect, resourcefulness, and determination. We pay tribute to her legacy this evening and appreciate how she has enriched the Association and its mission for years to come.

This past year has been a turning point in our history. While 2009 presented the worst economic downturn in our national economy in nearly three decades, NYWBA membership increased to its highest level yet. Many factors contributed to our growth, including revitalizing our Mentoring Circles program, updating our logo and online presence (thank you Publicity Co-Chair Tamara Lannin for getting us on LinkedIn and Facebook), investing in improved technical capabilities to accept electronic payments, manage responses, process renewals, and communicate with our membership in a professional format. As any lawyer can appreciate, introducing new processes and new software in your organization is a necessary but painful process. Introducing this all within the space of months in a volunteer organization transitioning to a new Executive Director and a new Treasurer was downright risky business. I appreciate your patience as we worked through the implementation process. I and the Association are indebted to Past President Elizabeth A. Bryson for taking on the responsibility of managing our technology improvements and to our new Executive Director, Karen Lu, for being the personable, professional, polite, productive and, above all, prompt front office of NYWBA.

At our Annual Dinner last June, we honored Chief Judge of the State of New York Jonathan Lippman, who was warmly introduced by retired Chief Judge Judith Kaye. Following the dinner, an inspired $100,000 gift became a beacon for the NYWBA Foundation Board. Through the efforts of Vice President Cathy Foti and Director Kay Marmorek, we also held a food drive in June to benefit Food Bank for New York City, with the kind participation and support of numerous courthouses and law firms in Manhattan. A "Virtual Food Drive" was held contemporaneously for monetary donations. The food drive surpassed all goals.

In July, NYWBA held its 14th annual program for summer associates titled "What It's Really Like to Practice Law as a Woman," co-sponsored by the New York City Bar. Many thanks to program leaders Cassandra Porter and Randy Shapiro, Deputy General Counsel, Newsweek, who afterwards accepted the role of Co-Chair of our Mentoring Circles Program. Our 15th annual summer program will be held on June 23, 2010 at City Bar. Sponsors for the reception that follows are always welcome.

In August, NYWBA teamed up with the National Women's Basketball Association (as well as families and friends) for Breast Health Awareness Night at Madison Square Garden. The program was again organized by Director and Past President Jo Ann Douglas. Over the summer, Vice President Cathy Foti assisted me in the selection of leaders for the many committees of our Association, including the two NEW committees established during my term: Intellectual Property, led by Maria Palmese, and Privacy & Cyberspace, led by Patrice Ettinger. The team of Carla Vogel and Annie Ugurlayan to chair our Newsletter Committee may possibly have been the best executive decision made this year. Together with Allison Surcouf, Beth Bryson, and Karen Lu, they have produced informative monthly newsletters with a regularity beyond compare. Possibly as frequent as the Matrimonial & Family Law Committee's substantive monthly meetings, thanks to the efforts of Co-Chairs Briana Denney, Sophie Jacobi, and Judge Andrea Masley.

In September, NYWBA Membership Committee Co-Chairs Jessica Ventarola and Heather Leifer organized our annual Membership Reception at the Skadden Arps firm, where we were graced with remarks from the always inspiring former New York Chief Judge Judith S. Kaye and a special presentation by Family Court Director Jane Schrieber. The special ceremony for Justice Sotomayor at New York Supreme Court with Chief Judge Lippman and Governor Patterson was a momentous occasion in which we shared.

In October, NYWBA kicked off its highly praised Mentoring Circles program at Newsweek with the formation of 10 groups of attorneys and law students to support and mentor each other. Mentoring Circle Program Co-chairs Andrea Vacca and Randy Shapiro rejuvenated the program established by NYWBA in the 1990s. We co-sponsored the annual JALBCA Symposium, which addressed the hot topic of "Gene Patenting". With the inspiration and assistance of our Events Committee Chair Diana Browne, we enjoyed a fun and informative wine tasting at the Sonnenshein firm lead by "Women of the Vine" author Deborah Brenner and a wardrobe networking cocktail party sponsored by Carlyle Collection. October is also when we said goodbye to our beloved founder, Hon. Florence Perlow Shientag, and relived her dynamic life and legal career with NYWBA as smartly summed up by Advisory Board member and Past President Myrna Felder's heartfelt eulogy.

In November, we were oversubscribed for our CLE program touring the New York County Civil Court, organized by our CLE Coordinator Yacine Barry. We were pleased to introduce Judge Eileen Bransten in our "Lunch with a Judge" program organized by Lisa Sokoloff. NYWBA paid tribute to past president Edith Fisch, the first female law professor in New York State, who endowed the Columbia Law School's law library collection. A plaque at Columbia acknowledges her history with NYWBA.

In December, NYWBA Foundation, led by Foundation President Karen Mitchell, hosted a breakfast with former Chief Judge Judith Kaye not only speaking but demonstrating how to "Turn Crisis into Opportunity". NYWBA was also represented on the dais of the New York Women's Agenda annual Star Breakfast, with Jane Fonda receiving the Eleanor Guggenheimer Lifetime Achievement Award presented by Gloria Steinem.

In January, members enjoyed an interesting and insightful "Lunch with a Judge" program – this time with Judge Barbara Kapnick. Our "Lunch with a Judge" programs have been organized by Lisa Sokoloff with the assistance of Kathy Lynch, Co-Chair of our Litigation Committee. Gretchen Schumann organized this year's annual Judges Reception in recognition of the newly elected, re-elected and appointed judges of New York County, with special remarks by Chief Judge Jonathan Lippman.

In February, ADR Co-Chairs Leona Beane and Andrea Vacca produced a very well-received CLE program titled "ADR in the Courts." NYWBA filled three tables to help celebrate WBASNY 30th Anniversary at the Water Club. NYWBA is proud to be a founding chapter of our statewide organization of women's bar associations, which continues to be a loud voice on issues of importance to women.

In March, International Law & Practice Co-Chairs Rebecca Hollis and Christa Bosch oversaw our sponsorship of the International Women's Day Reception and showing of the documentary "Courting Justice" held at the Court of International Trade.

In April, Elder Law Committee Co-Chairs Kay Marmorek and Miriam Davidson organized a program addressing elder care legal issues with the district attorney involved with the case against Anthony Marshall and his attorney over the estate of Brooke Astor. Following our annual meeting, Myrna Felder moderated a dynamic panel of clerks from the Appellate Division First and Second Departments titled "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Appellate Practice But Were Afraid To Ask." This was the Fourth Annual CLE on Appellate Practice, conceived of by Lisa Sokoloff.

In May, New York Law Journal published my comments on the significance of the Southern District's decision concerning the patentability of gene-based inventions for its Law Day section. Ethics Committee Co-Chairs Diana McShea and Honorable Barbara Jaffe, along with Matrimonial & Family Law Co-Chairs Briana Denney, Sophie Jacobi and Judge Andrea Masley put on an illustrious CLE panel program entitled "Litigating Under the New Ethics Rules: a Close Look at Rule

3.3 (Client Fraud) and Gender Bias in the Courthouse." The Elder Law Committee organized another helpful program on elder law issues, an important and growing practice area that WBASNY plans to focus on this year. NYWBA again sponsored the Annual Thurgood Marshall Junior Mock Trial Program, the 13th Annual Program held in May. We also participated in the Caren Aronowitz Memorial Diversity Program and Lunch held on June 4th in the Rotunda at 60 Centre Street with the assistance of Membership Committee Co-Chairs.

At the annual WBASNY Convention in May, NYWBA Director and incoming Delegate to WBASNY, Hon. Jacqueline W. Silbermann, received the first annual Judith S. Kaye Access to Justice Award with thunderous applause. Judge Silbermann had a transformative impact across our state through her leadership in the court system as the former Administrative Judge for Matrimonial Matters throughout New York State. In all of her many roles, Judge Silbermann has demonstrated her professionalism, good will, and service to the State of New York and we are privileged to have her talents steering our Association. NYWBA Past President Teresa Schiller was installed as WBASNY President-Elect for 2010-2011 last month, and we look forward to a close working relationship with WBASNY and Teresa.

Let's continue to address the unmet legal needs of women and children in Manhattan and beyond through the New York Women's Bar Association Foundation, a not-for-profit, 501(c)(3) charitable organization. Gifts to the Foundation are tax deductible. Through the Ellerin Scholarship, the Foundation funds judicial internships. With its angel sponsor, the Foundation established a $100,000 grant over five years to the Feerick Center for Social Justice at Fordham Law School. I thank Karen Mitchell for her leadership of the Foundation this year and wish her continued success in building the Foundation's resources and impacting our community in these important ways.

Let's continue the NYWBA tradition of providing mentoring, networking, leadership and continuing legal education opportunities to advance the status of women in the legal profession. Renew your membership in June and become active in a committee and in a mentoring circle. I thank incoming President, Gretchen Beall Schumann, for her support and wish her an eventful term filled with active members, quality programs, and faithful friends. I look forward to working on the new IP committee and with WBASNY to honor women in the federal judiciary in the coming year and also assist the Attorney Emeritus program established by Chief Judge Lippmann with pro bono training focused on the needs of immigrant children with our Pro Bono Chair, Gail Kempler. Let's go!

Honorable Sherry Klein Heitler The President's Special Award

Sherry Klein Heitler grew up in the Bronx and has lived in Manhattan for the past 41 years. She attended public schools, Bronx High School of Science, Hunter College (B.A. 1965), New York University (M.A. 1966), and Fordham University School of Law (J.D. 1976). She was admitted to the New York State Bar in January 1977.

During a hiatus between graduate school and law school, she was Assistant Director of Admissions at Long Island University, Brooklyn Campus. One of her primary responsibilities was insuring the diversity of the incoming student body. She was instrumental in developing a special program through which Associate Degree students could matriculate to obtain a B.A.

In 1977, she became a Law Assistant in the Civil Court of the City of New York. In 1979, she founded the law firm of Heitler & Levy, P.C., and taught Family Law at Baruch College, City University of New York. In addition, she was a New York City Civil Court Arbitrator, a Director of the Spingold Foundation, and she served in numerous matters as either a guardian, conservator or referee.

Justice Heitler was elected to the New York City Civil Court for a term beginning in January, 1994. In January 1996, she was designated to sit as an Acting Supreme Court Justice in New York County, and she was elected as a Supreme Court Justice in January 2001. Initially, she sat in a Trial Part. She was assigned to a Matrimonial Part, which involved cases dealing with the status of the divorce, custody, equitable distribution, child support and maintenance issues of the litigants. She sat in a Trial Assignment Part, where she evaluated, settled and assigned cases to trial. Thereafter, she was responsible for conferencing and settling various cases that were brought by or against the City of New York. She then presided over an Individual Assignment Part in which she tried all types of cases and decided motions thereon, including medical malpractice cases, contract cases, personal injury cases and landlord-tenant disputes. She presided over Mental Hygiene Law Article 81 applications and continues to conduct Mental Hygiene hearings at various hospitals in New York City. Such hearings address issues including the administration or withholding of medication, release from or retention by the facility, and electric convulsive therapy.

On January 2, 2007, she was appointed to sit as an Associate Justice on the Appellate Term, Supreme Court, First Department, where she currently reviews criminal and civil cases. In August 2008, she was further assigned to the Center for Complex Litigation, through which she administers all asbestos-related matters in the City of New York, with an inventory of more than 30,000 cases.

In December 2009, she was appointed as Administrative Judge for Civil Matters, First Judicial District.

Justice Heitler has chaired many committees and lectured at many different bar associations and lawyers' groups. She co-chaired the Continuing Legal Education program for the Millennium Women's Bar Convention sponsored by the Women's Bar Association of the State of New York. She is currently an Adjunct Professor of Law at Fordham University School of Law. Because of her strong belief in the value of education, she has employed legal interns from different law schools to work with her as part of their course of study.

She is a member of many professional groups, including Fordham Law Alumni Association (currently serving as Vice President); the New York City Bar; NYCLA; NYWBA (currently serving as a Director); New York State Bar Association; the Jewish Lawyers Guild (currently serving on the Board of Governors); the Judges And Lawyers Breast Cancer Alert and the National Organization for Women. In addition, she also served in a leadership capacity for the United Jewish Appeal, Auxiliary of Tisch Hospital and the Fordham Law School Advisory Panel.

Remembering Honorable Florence Perlow Shientag (1908-2009)

~ NYWBA Founder, Past President and Benefactor ~

New York Women's Bar Association Founder and Past President Honorable Florence Perlow Shientag passed away in October 2009 at the age of 101. She led an extraordinarily rich and accomplished life, and she continues to be an inspiration. She championed and supported the Association and women attorneys throughout her 75 years of membership. Through her remarkable bequest of $250,000 to the NYWBA, she has ensured that we will benefit from her vision and generosity for years to come.

Florence Perlow was born in 1908 and grew up in New York City, the youngest of four children. Her father, who had studied law but never practiced, died in 1935. Her mother went back to school late in life, earning a Ph.D. and practicing as a psychologist.

Judge Shientag received her Bachelor of Science from New York University in 1929 and her LL.B. degree from the New York University School of Law in 1931. After the standard internship then required of aspiring lawyers, she was admitted to the New York bar in 1933.

She began her career as a Law Secretary to the Honorable Fiorello LaGuardia, Mayor of New York City. She adored Mayor LaGuardia and had a variety of duties on his staff, from drafting legislation to investigating appointees for office, to sitting in for the Mayor at hearings. A photo the Mayor signed to Florence has the inscription, "City Hall has not been right since you left."

In the 1930's, New York bar associations did not allow women to be members. In 1934, when she was a recent law graduate and newly admitted, Judge Shientag was one of a handful of women attorneys who gathered together to form the New York Women's Bar Association. In 1935, she was a signatory on the Association's Certificate of Incorporation, which established the NYWBA as a "full service bar association" with all the required incorporation provisions, plus the additional provision to work to "define and elevate the status of women."

In 1937, the New York City Bar finally voted to allow the admission of women, and in 1938 Judge Shientag was in the first group of 13 women lawyers admitted as members.

After she left the Mayor's Office, she became a law clerk for Thomas Dewey, who was then a Special Prosecutor in New York County. In 1941, she was appointed a Judge of the Domestic Relations Court. (These Courts were later restructured and transformed into the NY Family Courts.)

In April 1941, she was elected NYWBA President for 1941-42. The U.S. entered World War II during her term, and she and the NYWBA rose to the occasion. The NYWBA partnered with the American Women's Voluntary Services (whose then-Chairman was NYWBA Past President Jenet Kaplan Brown) to open and staff a clinic to provide urgent legal services to military personnel and their families who could not afford counsel.

The NYWBA also joined with other bar associations to create a joint War Committee, so "attorneys and judges [could] make their contribution toward solving problems caused by the war." (NY Times, 3/19/42.) The committee had more than 75 active members, and Judge Shientag was named to the 17-person Executive Committee that set policy and prioritized the group's efforts. The War Committee provided legal advice on numerous issues, including the scope of the legal authority of air raid wardens and others who supervised civil defense activities; and the rights of attorneys entering military service to protect their private practices and assets for when they returned from duty, while ensuring their clients receive representation while they were away.

NYWBA Officers (1941-42) meet at Judge Shientag's Apartment

In 1943, she became an Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. She was the first female federal prosecutor New York, and one of the first in the country. During her nine years with the U.S. Attorney's Office, she handled a wide variety of civil and criminal matters, including prosecutions for illegal attempts to profiteer during the war, mail fraud cases involving defective products sold across state lines, insurance fraud prosecutions, counterfeiting, etc.

Attorneys in U.S. Attorney's Office, Southern District of New York (1952)

In 1952, Judge Shientag established a solo practice specializing in domestic relations and the representation of artists and others whose First Amendment rights were at risk. She eventually opened additional offices in Florida, London, Rome and Paris.

Over the years, Judge Shientag continued to be active with the NYWBA, New York County Lawyers' Association and New York City Bar, and she chaired committees for each association. She was the first woman elected to the NYCLA Board (1942-49), and she chaired the NYCLA Committee on Domestic Relations, which issued a scathing report in 1952 on the extent of child neglect and abuse, the paucity of social services and shelter available, and the deplorable lack of staff and infrastructure within the Domestic Relations Courts to address these issues.

In 1953, she took on a precedent-setting case involving the French film La Ronde, which had been declared "immoral" and banned by the NYS

Board of Regents, which governed film licensing. On behalf of her client, the film's distributor, she argued that the standards used by the Regents were vague and unconstitutional under the First Amendment right to free speech and the Fourteenth Amendment bar on the states unlawfully taking property. A critical issue was whether the government could "pre-censor" a film before it was shown, and this issue was complicated by a 1915 decision in Ohio that had held that movies were not entitled to the protections of the First Amendment. The trial court, Appellate Division and NY Court of Appeals all upheld the ban.

Judge Shientag's petition for certiorari to the U.S. Supreme Court was granted, and the case was heard with another matter involving the censorship of the film M. She personally briefed and argued the case before the Supreme Court, and in a unanimous opinion by Justice William O. Douglas, the Court struck down the ban and the distinction between movies and other forms of communication.

"Motion pictures are of course a different medium of expression than the public speech, the radio, the stage, the novel, or the magazine. But the First Amendment draws no distinction between the various methods of communicating ideas. ... [E]very writer, actor, or producer, no matter what medium of expression he may use, should be freed from the censor." Superior Films v. Dept. of Education, 346 U.S. 587 (1954).

Protection of the right to freedom of expression was very important to Judge Shientag, not only as a legal matter, but because she was an artist herself and a patron of the arts. Her home was filled with art, and she was a great friend to many artists, including the sculptor Henry Moore, and most especially Pablo Picasso, whom she knew well and visited regularly. Indeed, when his daughter Maya had a child, Judge Shientag was named godmother. Judge Shientag's paintings and sculptures may not have been as famous as her friends', but she won an award for one of her sculptures, and being an artist gave her a unique perspective on the potential impact of the law in this field. As a result, she was invited to chair the City Bar's Section on Law and the Arts, which under her leadership held distinguished lectures on the rights of artists, the laws affecting art, new media, etc.

In 1954, Judge Shientag ran a feisty but ultimately unsuccessful campaign to become a member of the NY State Senate. She was endorsed by an extraordinary array of people, including Eleanor Roosevelt, Mayor Robert Wagner, Margaret Truman, and many other luminaries of the day.

The list of Judge Shientag's honors and service is daunting. By Presidential appointment, she served as a member of the National Commission on Wiretapping and Electronic Surveillance, which the NY Times noted "was created to review Federal and state wiretapping practices [and] is expected to begin looking into the Nixon Administration's use of so-called national security wiretaps, some of which have become a focal point of the Watergate scandals." She was a Director of the United Nations Development Corporation. She was a referee in disciplinary proceedings before the First Department, chaired numerous political campaigns, was a member of corporate boards of directors, and was an invited guest at the inaugurations of many U.S. Presidents.

Judge Shientag also served on the NYS Task Force on Women in the Courts, and when its report was issued, she stated:

"In the fifty years that I have been practicing law, there has been a lessening of the dismissing and intolerant attitude towards women lawyers. This significant improvement is due to the performance and demonstrated ability of women in our profession. Brains have no sex."

An unusually attractive woman, Judge Shientag had strong opinions about women. As she said in a quip to a British tabloid, "Being a career woman is no good if you finish up as an imitation man. I believe women should look, feel, smell like women." On the other hand, she was a mentor to women, as she demonstrated in the same tabloid when she said that solicitors in Britain should "give their briefs [cases] to women barristers whenever possible."

Her mentoring of women lawyers was not limited to lip service, as she often committed resources to ensuring that women succeed. She regularly contributed funds to help defray NYWBA Presidents' expenses and covered the costs of programs and events. She frequently invited women attorneys to a complimentary lunch or dinner to get to know them and give them free advice on how to get ahead in what was still "a man's world."

In 1977, then-President Myrna Felder asked her to organize NYWBA Law Day celebrations. As Ms. Felder recollected:

"Florence, who had practiced in the Inns of Court, suggested a trip to London, which we called "Law Day in Legal London". We had a week without compare. Through her friends and connections, we were received by the Lord Chief Justice; met with the Lord Mayor of London; watched a trial in the Courts of Chancery and met with the Trial Judge; sat in the House of Commons for debate; traveled to Runnymede for a joint ceremony with the British Bar; were entertained by the Head of the Bar Society and by other members of the British Bar in their homes. On the final evening, Florence had arranged through Senator Jacob Javits for us to host a reception at the United States Embassy to reciprocate the hospitality extended to us during our stay – complete with a caller announcing each honored guest like something out of the movies. It has been thirty-three years since the trip, and it remains as vivid in memory as when we had just returned."

Judge Shientag later established and funded a contest for law school students to write scholarly essays on issues of Constitutional law, with the winning student receiving a $5,000 scholarship. The scholarship amount was later increased to $10,000. Many students benefited from the opportunity to research and write on topics that go to the core of our nation's fabric.

When the NYWBA became a founding chapter of WBASNY, Judge Shientag was a great supporter, and she tried to never miss an NYWBA Annual Dinner or WBASNY Annual Convention.

Judge Shientag was a great friend and supporter of the Women's Bar and its members, and she believed in the fair and equal administration of justice. We have all benefited from her influence, and her indomitable spirit and legacy live on in all of us.

NYWBA'S FIRST 75 YEARS ~ SEEKING THE FAIR AND EQUAL ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

As can be seen from the profiles of our Founders, Presidents and Advisory Council members, the NYWBA has an incredibly rich and vibrant history. During the 75th Anniversary Dinner, the NYWBA will debut a special slide show with many photographs and documents from our first 75 years. This and other information about our history will be available in a special new section on our website (www.nywba.org/History). We are dedicated to remembering and honoring our history, and we would love to see additional articles, photos, documents, and other archival materials from our members and friends. Please contact the NYWBA at History@nywba.org or 212-490-8202 if you have any historic photos, memorabilia or other archival materials.

NYWBA is Formed (1934-1935) - The New York Women's Bar Association was formed in 1934 after several of our founders were denied membership by the New York City Bar Association. When Hilda G. Schwartz (later Judge Schwartz) applied, she was turned down and told, "We have no restroom facilities for women." Our 1935 Certificate of Incorporation, filed on Ms. Schwartz's blue backs, contained all of the provisions found in the City Bar's Certificate, including all of the "purpose" provisions of a full service bar association - with a single additional provision, which reads, "To define and elevate the status of women."

Three of NYWBA's Founders: Lillian Kooperstein,
Hilda G. Schertz and Florence Perlow Shientag

NYWBA's First Membership Reception (1936)

The NYWBA held its first annual reception on May 25, 1936, welcoming 50 new women lawyers. The event was at the George Washington Hotel, as women were then not welcome at any bar association facilities.

During World War II, the NYWBA was very active. Among other accomplishments, it started a legal clinic for military personnel and their families who could not afford counsel, and it worked with other bar associations to provide legal advice on complex legal issues caused by the war. Demand for the legal clinic was so great that its hours were expanded to include Saturdays and evenings.

NYWBA Past Presidents, including Lillian Kooperstein, Isabel Joffe,
Judge Florence Perlow Shientag, Frieda Lorber, and other NYWBA colleagues, circa 1942

Although she graduated near the top of her class at NYU Law School, Fannie Klein was told in 1942 by a prospective (male) employer, "The boys are away at war, and we're scraping the bottom of the barrel." Ms. Klein went on to become an accomplished litigator and expert on court reform, the first female Professor at NYU Law School, and a President of the NYWBA.

"Men-Only" Bar Associations Begin to See the Light (1937)

In 1937, the New York City Bar allowed the NYWBA to hold its second reception at its building, and more than 200 women gathered for a triumphant celebration of the first time in sixty-eight years when women were allowed in that facility on equal terms with men. The following May, the City Bar voted to accept women members, and then-President Stein expressed the hope that "other bar associations which still stubbornly keep out a large group of lawyers because of their sex will do likewise." Many of our Founders were among the first group of thirteen women sworn in as City Bar members.

Seeking Parity in Judicial Appointments

On May 18, 1947, during the NYWBA annual luncheon, Magistrate Anna M. Kross charged that there was discrimination against women lawyers in the courts of this area. A New York Times article quoted Magistrate Kross: "There has never been a woman on the Federal district court bench," she said, "or the surrogate's court. Surely the latter, which was formerly known as the court for widows and orphans, is a place where women would be ideally suited to hold office." She added that in Queens County there never has been a woman lawyer on the court bench or in the district attorney's office. Additionally, it was reported that a nation-wide committee had been formed to fight for the principle of jury service for women in all states on an equal basis with men - in fourteen states, women cannot serve on juries and in fifteen others the right to serve is optional.

May 12, 1956 22nd Annual Luncheon, New York Women's Bar Association

The NYWBA was the major force behind the decision to establish the Women's Bar Association of the State of New York in 1980. NYWBA Past President Joan Ellenbogen was WBASNY's first President, and many NYWBA members have served as WBASNY Presidents, Officers and Directors.

NYWBA Silver Anniversary Luncheon, May 1959 - Hon. Beatrice Cass, Hon. Anna Kross, incoming President Lucille M. Gannon, Norah K. Donovan (past President, 1953-55), outgoing President, Norma Z. Paige, Hon. Margaret M.J. Mangan, and Hon. Justine Wise Polier (l-r). (The woman on the far right and the women in the foreground are not identified)

NYWBA on Domestic Violence

The NYWBA co-sponsored the Second Annual Conference on the Legal Rights of Battered Women in 1982. Participants represented thirteen counties and included assistant district attorneys, legal services and legal aid attorneys, law students, probation officers, social workers, and volunteers in shelters and on hotlines for battered women. Throughout the 1980's, when clinics or other programs for battered women were practically nonexistent, the Association continued to train attorneys to provide these services, often pro bono. The NYWBA and WBASNY have been leaders on the issue of domestic violence for decades.

At the 2010 WBASNY Convention (May 21, 2010), Hon. Arlene Hahn presents WBASNY's inaugural Judith S. Kaye Access to Justice Award to Hon. Jacqueline W. Silberman, former Statewide Administrative Judge for Matrimonial Matters and long-time member of the NYWBA Board of Directors

This commitment continues to this day, with NYWBA members serving as JALBCA Co-Presidents, on the JALBCA Board, and as JALBCA project leaders.

The New York Women's Bar Association, founded in 1934 and incorporated in 1935, is a non-profit organization devoted to improving the status of women in society, educating women lawyers and assisting them in professional development and advancement, and promoting the fair and equal administration of justice. The Association accomplishes these goals through the work of its committees, the presentation of continuing legal education programs, and the evaluation of judicial candidates. Through its affiliation with the Women's Bar Association of the State of New York, the Association also reviews and comments on proposed legislation and policy initiatives at the state, federal and international levels that are of concern to women and children.

Membership in the NYWBA is open to lawyers, judges, law students and law school graduates awaiting admission. To join the NYWBA or renew your membership, you can access our secure online membership form at www.nywba.org/Membership. To learn more about the Association, go to our website at www.nywba.org or call 212-490-8202.
